MARION, CRITTENDEN COUNTY, KENTUCKY, JUNE 25, 1891.

NUMBER 1

Value of a city to sustain free summer night but doesn't in her parks.

The German Emperor has written to Queen Victoria criticizing the Prince of Wales for his connection with the Emperor.

Mr. Cleveland left more than a hundred millions in the Treasury. There is now less than one million. Comment is unnecessary.

While in Henderson Hon. A. T. Wood reported under the "vine and fig tree" of Hon. John Young Brown. Such an example of courtesy or hospitality is worthy of imitation, and shows that the nature of men need not be marred by partisanship.

The Ohio Republican Convention last week nominated McKinley for Governor. Sherman was not understood except in the platform. He requested his friends not to bring up the fight between him and Foraker for Senator in the convention.

A number of the friends of the new constitution held a conference at Lexington Friday, and to arrange for a systematic canvass in behalf of the new instrument. Senator Blackburn was chairman of the meeting. An executive committee was appointed to take charge of the work.

Secretary Foster proposed, while keeping up the purchase of bullion, to stop the coinage of silver because the treasury vaults are already filled with silver certificates, but the President refused to hear him, not caring to arouse the silver men any more than his party has already done. Mr. Harrison has been out West.

Judge Woods' praise of the new constitution—the work of eighty-two Democrats and eighty-two Republicans—is the redeeming feature of his speeches. If the Democrats can make such a praiseworthy constitution—one that gives the commonwealth a black eye—they can continue to run State affairs, and maintain a laudable ambition to fill the Presidential chair next year.

Some years ago the Legislature of Kentucky passed a bill empowering the county to erect a public road. This was a good bill, and the people of the county, being so deeply interested, were anxious to see the bill passed. The bill passed, and the county has since been erecting public roads.

If the new constitution is adopted the railroads will have to pay current debts that are not now readily paid, as some of the roads of the Press are ready to testify. At present the roads may run over and kill stock and pay or not pay, just as they choose unless the farmer, whose hog or cow is killed, goes before the proper court and has a receiver appointed for the road, and has it run in his interest until he is paid for. Under the new constitution the cars, trucks, etc., can be attached and sold for the debt, just as any individual's car.

This is fair and right, and the argument made by opponents of the constitution that the stoppage of trains would be a great inconvenience to the public is too thin for consideration. No trains will be stopped, for the existence of the power to stop them will bring the desire to pay the debt before the train reaches the station. This is no mean point, for there are people living in Crittenden county with just such debts unpaid, notwithstanding our courts have given them judgment.

Messrs. N. E. Cort & Co. of New York, have offered a handsome price for six thousand boxes of American tinplate to be delivered at any time within a year. Not one of the great American tinplate manufacturing companies has accepted the standing offer. The truth is, there is no American tinplate maker. In St. Louis an ex-Republican Congressman has employed a Welshman and two boys to make tinplate, and he can not make a sufficient quantity to supply small tin cups for the high tariff club next year. The Chicago Tribune, a protective organ, has grown weary of so much talk about the making of tinplate, and calls upon the party multiplicity to "stop trying and build some tinplate mill." The New York Tribune published editorially "that the production of tinplate in this country had been so large as to compel the Welsh trusts to shut down." The Tribune then proceeded to investigate, and the next day said: "That assertion was a mistake and should never have been made."

Consul Corte has made a report in which he says the Italian lynched at New Orleans were not members of any secret society, but were hanged and shot simply because they were Jews and competed with American labor.

The prosecution of the jury bribers in the Hennessy case at New Orleans is making rapid progress. Several bribers have already been found guilty and last week John Conney was convicted and another verdict found against Chivast.

The steamer City of Richmond was docked on her arrival at Liverpool, to examine the damage caused by her fire at sea. When the hatchways were removed smoke and flames burst out, and it required a flooding of her hold to extinguish the fire, which was so intense that the decks were scorched.

SURPLUS GONE.

Only a Million Dollars in the Treasury.

Washington, January 18.—The Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Foster, found it convenient to go to his home in Port Ohio, Ohio, today to remain for a week or two. A few hours after his departure the United States Treasurer issued a statement showing that the cash balance in the Treasury is $13,415,000, of which $21,029,000 is on deposit with National banks, and $20,250,000 is in fractional silver, deducting which items the net cash balance is but $1,235,000, which is the lowest figure yet reached.

When it is considered that millions of dollars appropriated by the last Congress still remain unpaid, the people can easily see what a financial strait the Government is placed in. Before Congress met there was a surplus in the Treasury of over one hundred millions. Now all of that has been swept away, in addition to all the receipts of the Government since then, to say nothing of the indebtedness, made by the last session of Congress, which must be paid or repudiated. Since Congress adjourned the Attorney General and the Treasury officials have had their heads together constantly, devising ways and means to repudiate the large appropriations made by their Republican friends, in the House and Senate, and in many cases they have succeeded. Their success, however, will be but short lived as the debts contracted must be paid this year or next.

Since Secretary Foster assumed the Treasury Secretaryship, he has been daily besieged by claimants urging the settlement of their accounts legally ordered paid to them by the Legislative branch of the Government. He has put them off from day to day, hoping, Macawber like, for something to turn up that would relieve the embarrassing situation. Instead of this the financial affairs of the Treasury have been getting worse, the revenues have been daily decreasing, and the Secretary concluded that the best thing he could do for the present to escape the Government creditors was to leave the city for his country home and there ponder over the hard lines he has to endure as guardian of an immense store building, with nothing in the vaults but silver dollars, kept in store as security to redeem silver certificates.

Pretty, Whether True or Not.

During Col. John Young Brown's residence in Washington City, while he was a member of Congress he had a little experience which neither he nor his friends have ever been able to understand. He received a number of communications from an unknown correspondent, inclosing a powder cartfully wrapped up. The stuff was recommended to him as a remedy for rheumatism, malaria, etc. Of course Col. Brown did not try the physic, but threw it away without finding out what it was. By and by he received another letter, in the same handwriting as the other, asking him to come to a certain street corner, at a certain hour on a specified afternoon. The congressman's curiosity was aroused, and not being in the habit of stopping on account of any danger he donned his overcoat and went to the appointed place. Promptly at the appointed time a woman heavily veiled came along. A policeman near by had evidently noticed something suspicious in her conduct, as he stepped forward just in time to prevent her making an assault upon Col. Brown. She was placed under arrest, and proving to be a lunatic was locked up.

About three years ago the ex-Congressman had appeared in a law suit in Morganfield and had made a fearless appeal to the jury in prosecution of a desperate murderer. The verdict was being waited for and Col. Brown was conversing with some friends and standing near where the prisoner was sitting. Without a moment's warning the desperado sprang to his feet, and was just in the act of plunging a dirk into Col. Brown's heart, when one of the court officers seized the fellow's arm and prevented a terrible murder. It is related that Col. Brown was the only cool man in the room during the excitement which ensued, and had considerable difficulty in saving his would be murderer from immediate lynching.

A New York newspaper asserts that President Heers, of the New York Life Insurance Company will be "whitewashed" by the policy holders; also that the State Insurance Department will whitewash the corporation and its methods in the forthcoming investigation.

FIFTY DROWNED.

Victims of the Mexico Cloud Burst.

St. Louis, June 18.—Additional particulars of the terrible catastrophe which occurred on Monday last near the mining city of Catorice, in the State of San Luis Potosi, Mexico, are to the effect that the cloud burst on Conception mountain and a great stream of water poured down the mountain side, sweeping everything in its course. The habitations occupied by the miners were swept away, and the tunnel of the Guadalupe mine filled with water, drowning several miners, who were working inside. A number of people who were living in cliff dwellings were buried alive. At Las Cruces and El Potrero, on one side of the mountain, and Los Catorice on the other, fifteen dead bodies have been recovered, and there are believed to be many more.

The mining companies losses are heavy. Large quantities of high grade metal were carried away by the flood at the Conception property. Hundreds of pack animals drowned and roads destroyed. These are the meager details so far received from this remote district, though people here knowing the remote locality believe that there must have been at least fifty lives lost.

The Kentucky Staple.

The distilleries in the vicinity of Louisville have all closed down, with the exception of one or two small ones. Some idea of the amount of whisky made this year in this county may be had when it is known that one of the distilleries in the city limits has stored in its warehouses 47,000 barrels. It is estimated that there are stored in the various distilleries of Louisville just now 200,000 barrels, or 9,000,000 gallons of whisky. Most of this is sour mash. This would be equal to 540,000,000 drinks which at ten cents a drink would be $5,400,000,000. In this internal revenue district, which comprises several counties outside of this, there are more than 300,000 more barrels of whisky stored. This would be sufficient to float the largest steamer ever built, but it is unnecessary to say this whisky will not be used for any such purpose.—Louisville Post.

More Room Needed.

Frankfort, June 16.—Deputy Warden Sam O. Nunn, of the Edgelyville penitentiary, was in the city today and took charge of a gang of fifty convicts, destined for the Edgelyville penitentiary. Mr. Nunn says the Edgelyville penitentiary has but 414 cells and that the fifty new convicts will make a total of 414 convicts within the walls there, necessitating the doubling up of a few of the men with a few of the number to make provision for all. The penitentiaries here and at Edgelyville now are both crowded, beyond their capacity, and the next Legislature will find it imperative to make an additional cell house either at the prison or at Edgelyville.

Four Men Drowned.

Paducah, Ky., June 19.—While boating in a skiff at Golconda, Ill., last evening, Will Hoevisher and Will Krepke, white, and two colored men were drowned. The boat was caught by a passing storm and capsized in midriver, and all were swept away before relief arrived.

The German government has refused to surrender True Hart, a Philadelphia defaulter, only upon condition that the United States would recognize German demands for German criminals. The condition was not accepted.

Jacob Schell was hanged at Bridgeport, Conn. He was an old saloon keeper and shot a constable who was trying to break into his house to arrest him for selling liquor, the town being anti-liquor.

Paducah News: There is an old farmer near Florence station who has raised forty crops with two horses and the same two. There is not another man in the State who can say this.

Secretary Noble, it is stated, will undertake a thorough investigation of the irregularities in the Pension Bureau.

For a man or woman to be like a Christian at church and a devil at home, means that he or she is a hypocrite. Anybody that can control themselves among strangers and be smiling and polite to others, can do the same at home if they try. To be cross and boorish in the family parlance of the lowest nature of the lowest animals. There are many men considered gentlemen by those on the outside who deserve to be hung for the way they treat their wives.—Circuit Rider.

Missouri Letter.

SIKESTON, Mo., June 12, '91.
ED. PRESS: As I am a reader of the Press and have been for many years I propose to write a few lines for the benefit of your readers. I what I write benefits any of my Kentucky friends and is the means of benefiting any who may be seeking new fields of action, I shall feel I have not written in vain.

My object in writing is to give to the readers of the Press a brief description of Sikeston and the surrounding country.

The town is situated on the Iron Mountain railroad, 29 miles west of Cairo, Ill., on one of the most fertile ridges in southeastern Mo. When I say ridge, I do not mean a hill such as is found in Crittenden county, but a great swell in the ground plain of southeast Mo.

I came to this place the 14th of last September and remained here five months, during which time I formed the acquaintance of most of the business men of the town, and many of the other citizens, all of whom are generous, kind hearted people, and ever ready to oblige those who try to oblige themselves. They seem to feel an interest in any one who locates among them, and are ready to give him the advantage of good society. And I will remark that the society here is as refined as any to be found in America. No matter what a man's calling may be, just so he is a gentleman he is as highly respected as if he were a Croesus.

Money is looked to only as a purchasing medium, and not as a standard of gentility.

Sikeston is a growing town and at present has about 1200 inhabitants. It is becoming quite a trade center, and business of all kinds grows better each year. The business men of the town are kept busy from "early morn till dewy eve" and a long time after. Quite a force of salesmen are employed by the merchants, and they are constantly employed waiting on customers. As a shipping point, Sikeston has few equals of her size.

There was shipped from here last year 135,316 bushels of wheat, besides the corn and other small grain and shipments for this year will probably reach 200,000 bushels. This is one of the best locations for a merchant roller mill I have ever seen. The meal and flour used in the town is shipped here. During the last four months there has been 1500 lbs of flour, 632 bushels meal, and 80,000 pound of bran. The wheat and corn is shipped away from here, ground into flour and meal and sent back.

This is a great grain country here. There have been 52 binders and 11 mowers sold here this season and other farm implements in proportion. There is a demand for hands of all kinds. Good wages are paid for all kinds of work. Hensler Bros, the leading contractors and builders, work from 15 to 20 hands all the time. The livery business is quite profitable here. The town has an excellent school building and a good school is kept ten months in the year. It also has two churches and the people take a great interest in church matters. As a town they are very temperate and pious, there being no whisky sold here. This would be a good place for a young lawyer. Of course like all other countries there is more or less litigation, but it being 12 miles to the county seat, a good enterprising young lawyer could do well here.

When I came back here after a very pleasant visit to my Kentucky home, I found everything lively. I spent a few days in town and then took quite a lengthy tour through the country. I found everything lively among the farmers, some of whom are engaged in breeding fine horses, principally race horses; there are some fine horses here and much attention is given to stock raising generally. The crops here are fine and everything is in a prosperous condition.

I still love old Kentucky and her people, but the advantages here for a young man to make money are so much better than they are in Kentucky I think I am content to stay here; and to any young man back there who wants a good place to build himself up in the world, I say to him come to Sikeston. I safely say that this country affords far better advantages for a young man than Kentucky does. There are several Crittenden and Livingston county people here, all doing well.

Now, Mr. Editor, as I don't want to weary you I will close. I think I can send you a nice little club of subscribers.

Wishing the Press and all my dear old Kentucky friends much success, and a long life, I am as ever
Yours fraternally,
Chas T. Clarke.

Empty Sleeves.

The one thing that strikes a traveler in the South with most force is the great number of empty sleeves.

There is something pathetic in the scene; but it most stir a feeling of deep respect and admiration. I never meet there an empty sleeve but I am prompted to stand with uncovered head. Those who carry empty sleeves are seldom vagabonds; they receive nothing from the Government and ask nothing; still a great proportion of them will be found prosperous and among the leading spirits of their section. They are patriots and citizens, and deserve the admiration of every section of our country.

Tate's Bondsmen Suit.

Frankfort, June 17.—The circuit court today set the new trial of the case of The Commonwealth vs. Jas. W. Tate's bondsmen for next Monday week and in order to take up the case Judge Montfort agreed to continue his court for two weeks. The cases will be tried under the decision of the Court of Appeals, reversing the judgment of the circuit court on the first trial and holding that the bondsmen, separately or together, are liable for the defalcation of Tate, but that the State, in order to prove the liability, must set out specifically the defalcation on each bond, or any one or two of the bonds, in which the same or any single one of the bondsmen may be the security.

Lexington, Ky., June 17.—The Lexington Press Association met today and adopted bylaws for their government, and the association is in good shape.

A lively discussion occurred in the circuit court today over the appointment of a receiver for the Kentucky Trade's Journal, managed and edited by Col John O. Hodges and H. T. Groom. A dissolution is asked and a general suspension may follow unless differences can be settled. The court has not yet rendered a decision in the matter.

According to the report of the Assessors, Kentucky farmers raised last year 168,311,936 pounds of tobacco, 370,642 tons of hay, 41,971,822 bushels of corn, 9,739,749 bushels of wheat.

Hon. John S. Rhea has evidently made his arrangements to stump Kentucky this year, and failing to get the nomination for Attorney General he is making speeches against the new constitution.

An express train on the Missouri Pacific road was attacked by a constable and held for three hours at Eshela, Colorado, to collect a debt of $17.50 the road had neglected to pay. Moral: The traphammer of negligence can stop the big as well as the little citizen—in some States.

He was a man of sterling qualities, and as a patriot and statesman he stood high in the estimation of his countrymen. He was a champion of the Indiana Democracy. He was born in Ohio in 1819; was admitted to the bar in 1844; was elected to Congress in 1848, and was a United States Senator from 1875 to 1881.

Congressman Wilson, of West Virginia one of the ablest of the Democratic leaders in the fight for Tariff Reform, will edit the Tariff Reform Department of the St Louis Republic, aided by all the prominent tariff reformers of the country. It will be a great feature of the Weekly Republic (issued in two parts, one Tuesday and one Friday) which is only ONE DOLLAR a year. Send for a sample copy, which is sent free.

T. J. Nunn, of Marion, is mentioned as a probable candidate for circuit judge in this district.—Marionfield Sun.

Judge Nunn is eminently qualified for the position. As a man he is clean and upright, sober and discreet, as a lawyer he ranks with the best at the bar of this district. His equitable temperament, his analytical mind, his fine judgment and thorough knowledge of the law, arm him exceedingly well for the bench. Should he be a candidate his own county will give him practically a unanimous vote; and should he be elected he will add to the good name and reputation of the bench in this district.

They Are for It.

A PRESS representative called up on the members of the Marion bar for their positions on the new constitution, and the following was the result: I think that I am for it. Since I have read and re-read it, I think it is an improvement on the old one. Still there are some objectionable features.—J. G. Rochester.

I have not read it, but I am for it. It's a better constitution than the one we have.—W. L. Cruce.

I am for it. I have read it twice. I don't see how any laboring man can afford to vote against it.—W. J. Deboe.

I like it better than I do the old. Three things that now need constitutional provisions, namely, corporations, railroads and municipalities, were in their infancy when the old was adopted, and our experience with them since that day has taught us the wisdom of making provisions for their government in our organic law.—S. Hodge.

I am for it, while I think it could be better; I think it is much better than the old.—A. C. Moore.

Yes sir, I have read the new constitution from one end to the other and think it is decidedly better than the old. It effectually settles local legislation, which consumes a large per cent of the legislature's time; it taxes banks just the same as it taxes individuals, which is fair and right; while it treats railroads and other corporations fairly, it curbs their greed; it does away with taxing people to build railroads; it provides for a secret ballot. These are a few things that make it worthy of adoption. There are others that time and experience will prove to be good features.—C. S. Nunn.

I have no read the entire document but so far as I have examined I think it is an improvement on the old and shall vote for it.—J. W. Blue, Jr.

I have just commenced reading the new instrument and have not digested enough to say whether I am for or against it, when I am through, I will give you my views.—L. H. James.

Storms were reported Saturday in various sections of the country, but Kentucky escapes with but little damage. At Bevier, in Muhlenburg county, seven houses were destroyed and one life was lost. The Methodist church in Lewisport, Hancock county, was wrecked, barns were blown down and one man was killed. Wheat and corn were washed out in Graves county, and some damage was done in Daviess. Kansas was the heaviest sufferer. There was some loss of life, some loss of property and great damage to crops. Fort

Scott was deluged by a cloud burst; Arkansas City was struck by a cyclone; Emporia was shaken by a tornado, and Chanute was damaged by a plain, hard blow. In Missouri the loss is principally around Osceola, where crops were damaged to the extent of $500,000. In Illinois there is some wind wrecked country. A cyclone struck the town of Effingham, and several buildings were blown away.

A tornado passed through Hancock county Saturday, doing great damage to crops, fences and barns. David Ray, a young man, was killed in the debris of a falling barn.

A cyclone passed through Monroe and Metcalfe counties Saturday, tearing down buildings and destroying crops. A number of people were injured but none killed.

Death of C. G. Colmisen.

The writer of this paragraph has just heard of the death of Charles G. Colmisen, brother of Capt. W. F. Colmisen, the able conductor on the O. Cro's in Crittenden county are in good shape. A good wheat crop is being harvested; the growing corn is clean of weeds, and the recent generous rains have put it to grow rapidly. An average tobacco crop will demand the attention of the farmers through the summer.

Gray & Alley brought sixty head of cattle to Marion Saturday for shipment. The cattle averaged 1350 pounds each, and were as fine a lot as has been shipped from this place in many a day. They sold out here to an Evansville man, and made money by selling out just when they did.

Marion people think little of their dead, if we are to judge them by the condition of the cemetery. Weeds, briars, decaying fences, tumble down grave stones and the rambling hog weeds on every side of the main enclosure. This should not be and will not be if the people will take the time to think about it.

We acknowledge the receipt of a copy of "Crop Statistics," a circular issued by Hon. C. Y. Wilson, Commissioner of Agriculture, showing the amount of corn, hay, wheat and tobacco raised in each county in the State in 1890. Edgar Melles, the twenty-year-old son of Mr. W. H. Melles, died at his father's home in this place Sunday June 21, after an illness of ten days. He came from school at Hopkinsville a few weeks ago, and went to Blackford and began work for Mr. Frank McCoy. He was stricken down with flux and remained at that place until Saturday, when he was brought to Marion. He was a promising young man, having just completed his education and begun life for himself. The remains were buried in the Marion cemetery Monday. The bereaved family has the sympathy of the entire community in this sad and trying affliction.

We learn from our esteemed friend the Rev. A. A. Niles, of Cairo, Ky., that a grand work has been accomplished by Rev. J. J. Smith and himself in the counties of Jefferson, Hamilton and Franklin, Ill., and that the Holiness workers will hold the first meeting of the Union Holiness Association at Spring Garden, commencing July 29 and closing the 2d of August. About 500 persons in the counties named have professed the experience of sanctification and more than three hundred others conversion. Some of the ablest preachers in Kentucky of the doctrines of sanctification are to accompany Bro. Smith and Niles to the Association, among them Revs J. W. Bigbam and B. A. Candif, of Henderson.—Henderson Journal.

The dramatic entertainment given last week were well attended and deserved the good patronage received. The music was splendid and the dramatic personae was not only creditable but a source of justifiable pride to the local lovers of the drama. Mr. E. A. Donakey, the central figure in Nevada, carried his part well; his magnificent voice and thorough conception of the character show that he has considerable talent. Miss Little McGowan as Mollie, the leading lady, impersonated the waif to a degree of perfection rarely found in amateur clubs. Miss Grace Perkins makes a handsome and graceful old lady. Miss Ada James has a good voice. As a miser, Henry Stone appeared to advantage, and his somewhat elongated physique and grotesque enunciation brings vividly to mind the typical gold digger.

Harry Baugh's make up as a Chinaman as well as closely knit oriental dialect carried one to the laundry door. Sandy Adams, the negro brought down the house. David Kevill, as the lover, and Frank Cassatt, as the detective, played well. Upon a whole it was the best work our local club has ever done.

Col. Polk at Grand Rivers

There will be public speaking at Grand Rivers Thursday, July 24, 1891, at 11 o'clock, by Col. L. L. Polk of Raleigh, N. C., and Hon. J. F. Willea, U. S. Senator, of Kansas, who will speak on the pending issues of the Farmers Alliance and Industrial Unions of America. Everybody should avail themselves of the opportunity to go and hear them in the premises.

Joseph D. Twindle.

Children like to take "C. C. C. Certain Chill Cure," the pleasant and guaranteed cure for Fever, Ague and Malaria—better than quinine. Sold by Hilliard & Woods.

Friday a representative of the Press spent a few hours in Blackford, the place with so much notoriety, on the O. V. road eleven miles from Marion. Within the last year there has been a great improvement in the little village, and whatever it may have been it does not now deserve to be under the tongue of disparage. A few unfortunate affairs occurred there earlier in its history, but it is now peaceful and pleasant, and promises to be a splendid business point. It is surrounded by a good country, and is some distance from any other town, and considerable business is done there in a small way.

The business houses there are: W. H. Hudson, groceries; Sam Morgan, dry goods, with R. L. Morgan as manager; Isaac Scott, groceries; John Simpson, groceries; N. A. Morgan, groceries and postmaster; Joel Taber, dry goods; Jas. Walker, blacksmith. All are doing well and are interested in the growth of the place, and will tell you that Blackford is coming to the front. Alex. Woody and Dave Crowell have a neat saw and grist mill and are employing men, who expect to add improvements to their property. But by far the largest business concern in the place is the Tradewater Lumber Manufacturing Company. Mr. Frank McCoy has charge of this business. A new mill, with all the modern improvements and conveniences for handling logs and lumber, has but recently been put up. It cuts from 25,000 to 30,000 feet of lumber per day, and is moving along in splendid shape. It is located on the banks of Tradewater river, and thousands of logs from the dense forest along the banks of the river for forty miles can be carried to the saw at a minimum cost. A switch from the O. V. to the mill also carries in logs and carries out the lumber for Chicago and other markets, where on account of its high grade it finds a ready market at good figures. Mr. McCoy is an experienced lumberman himself, and he has Messrs B. W. Davis and Frank Duncan, expert sawyers and lumbermen, employed. The lumber yards are conveniently located and already have a large lot of fine hard lumber stacked on them. There are a ready thirty hands on the pay roll of the mill, and a planing machine will be put in shortly, and the working force increased. It is the largest rough lumber mill in this section of the State, and being situated in the center of an almost inexhaustible supply of timber, it will do an immense business for some time to come. Mr. McCoy is a fine business man, full of enterprise, and will make this mill a success.

Recently the O. V. has put in a telegraph office, and there is talk of a new depot in the near future, which shows that business is on the increase.

Blackford boasts of the second best school house in Webster county.

The Colored Normal.

Our school will close Friday June 26, and we shall give a concert on Friday night for the benefit of the C. M. E. Church and pastor. We are glad to say that the school has been a grand success. Some of the teachers say that they feel fifty per cent stronger. We hope the spirit of improvement which has actuated the teachers of this and adjoining counties will spread throughout Western Kentucky, and that such schools may elevate the standard of our teachers generally. We highly appreciate the respect that has been shown us, and the encouragement that has been given us by Prof. Price, Mr. R. C. Walker and other white citizens of Marion. This is the best little city in Kentucky. We go away but Marion will see us again. Geo. W. Brooks, Teacher.

Excursion to Blackford.

On account of the Grand Barbecue at Blackford, Saturday June 27, the Ohio Valley railroad will sell round trip tickets at greatly reduced rates on that day. FARM AND GARDEN

AMONG THE BEES.

Practical Suggestions and Directions About Raising Swarms.

When swarming time is at hand it is important to have everything ready. Many swarms are lost every year, and in most cases on account of carelessness on the part of the beekeeper. To be successful we must not be caught "napping," but "be up and dressed," and when a swarm comes be prepared to have it immediately. Hives and frames should be in readiness, and at least one on the stand where you want the new swarm placed, and carry the swarm to the hive.

A HOME-MADE SWARMING APPARATUS.

Many times less light high, or on fruit or ornamental trees that we do not wish to injure by cutting the limb off. In such a case a kind of swarming apparatus is very convenient. The one here reproduced from Ohio Farmer is made from a long forked stick. Bend the forks together in the shape of a hoop, and fasten enough to go in a large coffee sack for other open material that will not smother the bees, then fasten it in the mouth of the sack. Bend the stick near the fork. For convenience cut the stick in two near the fork, and fasten the two parts together again, so they can be easily taken apart. This makes a very good swarming arrangement. It is very cheap, light and convenient, says the author.

Shake the bees from the limb into the sack, turn it over, and no bees can escape; carry them to the hive; take the cover off, and gently lay the sack on top of the frame, so the bees can crawl out of the sack down into the hive. Sometimes a swarm will leave their new home. To make a sure thing of their staying, give them a comb containing brood and honey from the parent hive. I have never had a swarm leave when this treated.

In having a swarm on empty frames we do not mean that they are strictly empty, but frames that have a "starter" in them, which is a narrow strip of foundation about an inch wide, fastened in the center of the middle of the top bar, and on the same principle that foundation is fastened in section boxes. This serves as a comb guide, and we get the combs built just where we want them.

The Losses in Corn Feeding.

From experiments made at the Wisconsin station to ascertain the comparative loss in corn feeding, when preserved in the silo by the ordinary method of curing in the field, the results of trials during a period of three years appear to be narrowed down to this: The loss of food materials in either system is very considerable, and about equal. Cans cannot be preserved by any method now known without their deteriorating in value.

In the fodder corn as it is cut in the fall there is a certain quantity of food elements that may be preserved in a silage in the silo, or cured and fed to cattle as dry food. In either case an equal quantity of the food materials is destroyed, on an average about one-fifth. This loss being equal in either case, the question of which method of preserving fodder corn to adopt becomes one of convenience and economy of feed.

Value of the feeding stuffs was about the same for milk and butter production, hence it is concluded the adoption of non-feeding of the silage must be decided on the score of convenience. In some localities the conditions may be more favorable to the feed curing system, while in others the uncertainty of weather, the cheapness of lumber or the severity of winter may speak strongly in favor of the system of ensiling the fodder corn.

Manure for Potatoes.

A fertilizer suited to any soil cannot be prescribed without knowing the particular needs of whatever soil it is applied to. In most cases, the most certain and reliable fertilizer is good barn manure properly applied the previous year. Superphosphates are not always paid for, but if they have proved the exceedingly useful on any soil, a few hundred pounds may be applied to the acre. In other instances ground bone, mixed with moderately strong barn manure, has proved beneficial on some land. Nitrate of soda has greatly aided growth on some soils, with no appreciable loss on others. An extensive manufacturer of potato fertilizers assured that he could not recommend any for certain, but when in the soil is decomposed, and yields its constituents to the feeding plant in proportion to the fineness. It varies but little in composition, and is best for use in fertilization than most fertilizers. They, in fact, are mostly pure.

Ground bones as a fertilizer.

In a report on experiments made at the New Jersey station with ground bones as a fertilizer, it is pointed out that ground bone is both a phosphate and a source of nitrogenous matter. It is not until when in the soil is decomposed, and yields its constituents to the feeding plant in proportion to the fineness. It varies but little in composition, and is best for use in fertilization than most fertilizers. They, in fact, are mostly pure.

Ground bones have a tendency to cake, and to avoid this the manufacturers use other substances, which, while aiding mechanically, reduce the chemical value of the mixture. Raw bone is most usually pure, but the fat it contains renders it less easily decomposed. Bones having served the purpose of the glimmer at low in nitrogen and very high in phosphoric acid. The method now employed of steaming the bones under pressure improves their quality without altering the amount of the plant food ingredients.

As the value of ground bones depends upon composition and their fineness, a mechanical as well as chemical analysis is required to determine their value. The farmer must determine by experiments which grade he should buy, which, for example, pay a dollar for ten pounds of phosphoric acid in one condition, or for eighteen, and a half pounds in another form. Average waste ashes are worth nine dollars per ton, but the best vary considerably.

Agicultural Notes.

It is reported that about four out of every five counties in the Texas grain belt show a total increased acreage over last year for wheat, corn and oats between 75 and 100 per cent.

The consumption of canned goods in the United States is increasing much faster than in the demand for these goods abroad, according to Trade Statistics.

Cattle pastured in swampy or muddy grounds are especially liable to "foot rot."

The quickest way to get the rust off a spade or shovel is to coat it with coal oil and scour it with a brick.

It is said that nine-tenths of the swarms of the United States is put into market under a year old.

Delays are delighted with the provisions for the dairy exhibit at the Columbian fair. The board of managers have decided upon the erection of a suitable building, which, with outbuildings and yards, is to cover some of ground and cost $25,000.

How to Build Convenient and Comfortable Quarters for a Hundred Poultry.

Fig. 1 illustrates how to build a poultry house and outbuildings. The poultry house is 50 to 100 feet long. The width of the house should be divided into three equal parts, and the middle part should be used for the fowls. The style of the house is to be adapted to the taste and pocketbook of the builder.

Remedy for Potato Bugs.

Potato bugs are the standard pest, and when thoroughly applied is always effective. When applied in a solution of water is enough. Apply in as fine a spray as you can, and only as often as the number of the insects makes necessary. The poison has a tendency to settle, which makes continued stirring important, otherwise it is likely to be unequally distributed and to injure the foliage in places. For this reason many prefer the dilution with plaster. Among them is Mr. E. S. Cramer, who writes: "I have used this remedy for the potato bug, and it has been very successful. It is a very cheap, light and convenient, says the author."

A Cheap Ice Box.

Now that the warm weather is here it is important to have a cheap ice box. To be sure it will be a rough one, but much better than none, and in keeping quality with more costly ones. It can be made with two second hand dry goods boxes. One should be from three to four inches smaller in diameter than the other. On the bottom of the larger box, spread a layer of sawdust, and set the smaller box on it. Pick around between the two with sawdust. Put a tin spoon through the bottom for a drain pipe. Put shavings at the end of the inner box, leaving a space for ice in the middle. Fit tight with hinges to each box and set the whole on supports at each end, so that a pan can be set under to catch the drip.

Where to Fasten the Carriage Lantern.

The query, "Wanted to know where to fasten a lantern to a carriage to light up the road on a dark night," is answered as follows in the Farm and Garden. The lantern should be fastened to the front of the carriage, and not to the side, as the side is liable to be hit by a horse or other animal. The lantern should be fastened to the front of the carriage, and not to the side, as the side is liable to be hit by a horse or other animal.
